SCHOOL CHOICE	COMMON CORE
SCHOOL CHOICE EMPOWERS PARENTS to direct their child's share of education funding, giving them options beyond an assigned government school.	COMMON CORE CENTRALIZES EDUCATION by dictating the standards and assessment that will determine the content taught in every public school across the country.
SCHOOL CHOICE PRESSURES PUBLIC SCHOOLS with a much needed competitive atmosphere, which works toward improving educational outcomes for students who take advantage of choice options as well as students who choose to attend their local public schools.	COMMON CORE HAS NO EVIDENCE that it will improve academic outcomes or boost international competitiveness. But the Obama Administration has pushed states to adopt national standards and assessment in exchange for offers of billions of dollars in federal funding and waivers from the onerous provisions of No-Child-Left-Behind.
SCHOOL CHOICE HELPS KIDS. Education choice represents the type of innovation and freedom that will provide long-overdue reform to the K-12 education system, and holds the potential to truly raise educational outcomes for every child across the country.	COMMON CORE ASSUMES that top-down, uniform standards and assessment- driven by federal bureaucrats and national organizations- are preferable to the state and local reform efforts guided by input from parents, teachers, and taxpayers.
